

Gov. Schwarzenegger Marks Beginning of Repairs to Critical Erosion Levee Sites

“Today, I am extremely happy to see work begin to repair our most vulnerable levees... Today, we have action and work has begun to start placing the rock to shore up these eroded river banks”

On July 11, 2006, Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger accompanied Director Lester Snow and other dignitaries on top of a critical erosion site on the Sacramento River near Knights Landing, one of 29 sites scheduled for repair before the next flood season.

Governor Schwarzenegger thanked the Department of Water Resources and other federal, state, and local agencies for their steadfast determination in providing adequate flood protection for the Sacramento area and, ultimately, for California.

Construction on the critical erosion sites has begun and will be completed by November 1, 2006.
