Comment 1: It appears as though only energy reductions attached to water savings are allowed. Would you also include onsite water savings as well as the savings due to embedded energy in water.

Comment 2: Would you add measures for water-efficient hot water systems, which include shorter piping from source to use, circulation pumps, thermostatic shutoff valves for showers, tubs and spouts, and drain water heat recovery.

Comment 3: Would you add measures for systems making use of grey water source heat pumps, treated on-site recycling, and recycling showers.
